The aim of this project is to realize operations oriented to the increasing and spreading of renewable energy, especially solar. Energy production both in Sicily and Malta is nearly only based on non-renewable sources of power and it is short of EU targets. The project called RESI aims to set common strategies to overcome this gap, by promoting technological transfer and good practice exchange. Its specific aims are: to spread RESI knowledge, competency and social acceptability; to compare and assess the energy strategies from the environmental, social and economic point of view; to identify and disseminate an action plan for promulgating renewable energy.

The project activities follow the regular procedure which has been already experimented by A21L (Local Agenda 21), through which it will be possible to involve the main stakeholders, by starting from awareness raising activities. The Work Packages consist of the following activities: development of environmental, social and economic "data bank" linked to the diffusion of RES; creation of a Renewable Energy Atlas (a map of RES systems and positive practices in Malta, Provinces of Agrigento and Ragusa); organization of a Renewable Energy Tour (training visits of partners and the main stakeholders to the most important RES installations) in order to share positive practice; promotion of strategies to implement RES through the creation of an Energy Forum in order to build local multi stakeholders scenarios; creation of trans-boundary exchange network by means of the Renewable Energy Points (information and awareness centres about RES will be established in partner countries).

The expected results are: exchange of information and know-how; creation of a database to build a trans-boundary RES observatory; shared strategies, improvement of the energy produced by RES; improvement of action plan measures on RES within qualified partners in the regulation and spreading of the energy policies.
